Exploring New Roles For Librarians The Research Informationist Lisa Federer:

Exploring New Roles for Librarians Lisa Federer, 2014-03-01 Librarians have been providing support to researchers for many years typically with a focus on responding to researchers needs for access to the existing literature However librarians skills and expertise make them uniquely suited to provide a wide range of assistance to researchers across the entire research process from conception of the research question to archiving of collected data at the project s conclusion In response to increasingly stringent demands on researchers to share their data and as computationally intensive and primarily data driven scientific methods begin to take the place of traditional lab based research the research informationist has emerged as a new information profession With a background in library and information sciences as well as expertise in best practices for data management grant funder policies and informatics tools the research informationist is capable of implementing a full suite of research support services This book will discuss how the research informationist role has developed out of the previously established clinical informationist model and how it expands on the model of embedded librarianship The book will also examine core competencies for the successful research informationist and the training and preparation necessary for students in library and information sciences programs as well as currently practicing librarians Finally this book will consider how research informationists can form collaborative partnerships with research teams and build their services outside the walls of the library citing practical examples of the types of support research informationists can offer

Information Verification in the Digital Age Nora Martin, 2022-06-01 This book will contemplate the nature of our participatory digital media culture the diversity of actors involved and how the role of the news librarian has evolved from information gatekeeper to knowledge networker collaborating and facilitating content creation with print and broadcast media professionals It will explore how information professionals assist in the newsroom drawing on the author s experiential knowledge as an embedded research librarian in the media industry The past decade has seen significant changes in the media landscape Large media outlets have traditionally controlled news and information flows with everyone obtaining news via these dominant channels In the digital world the nature of what constitutes news has changed in fundamental ways Social media and technologies such as crowdsourcing now play a pivotal role in how broadcast media connects and engages with their audiences The book will focus on news reporting in the age of social media examining the significance of verification and evaluating social media content from a journalistic and Information Science IS perspective With such an emphasis on using social media for research it is imperative to have mechanisms in place to make sure that information is authoritative before passing it on to a client as correct and accurate Technology innovation and the 24 7 news cycle are driving forces compelling information professionals and journalists alike to adapt and learn new skills The shift to tablets and smartphones for communication news and entertainment has dramatically changed the library and media landscape Finally we will consider automated journalism and examine future roles for news library professionals in the age of digital social media

Near Field Communication Sheli McHugh, Kristen Yarmey, 2022-05-31 Near Field Communication is a radio frequency technology that allows objects such as mobile phones computers tags or posters to exchange information wirelessly across a small distance This report on the progress of Near Field Communication reviews the features and functionality of the technology and summarizes the broad spectrum of its current and anticipated applications We explore the development of NFC technology in recent years introduce the major stakeholders in the NFC ecosystem and project its movement toward mainstream adoption Several examples of early implementation of NFC in libraries are highlighted primarily involving the use of NFC to enhance discovery by linking books or other physical objects with digital information about library resources but also including applications of NFC to collection management and self checkout Future uses of NFC in libraries such as smart posters or other enhanced outreach are envisioned as well as the potential for the touch paradigm and Internet of things to transform the ways in which library users interact with the information environment Conscious of the privacy and security of our patrons we also address continuing concerns related to NFC technology and its expected applications recommending caution awareness and education as immediate next steps for librarians Essential Leadership Skills for Health Sciences Information Professionals Janet Crum, Annabelle V. Nuñez, 2023-04-04 Selected as a 2025 Doody's Core Title Effective leadership and management are essential to a successful thriving health sciences library yet often librarians are promoted into leadership roles with little to no training and support Then swamped with the demands of their new positions they struggle to find time to read multiple books on a leadership topic or attend long and expensive leadership training programs Essential Leadership Skills for Health Sciences Information Professionals is intended to help fill that gap by making the accumulated wisdom of experienced leaders available in a concise easy to digest format Each chapter is written by an experienced library leader and provides essential background and practical actionable advice on eleven essential leadership topics the health sciences library environment building relationships and engaging stakeholders setting direction building and leading the team engaging your staff leading with a focus on diversity equity and inclusion planning and managing projects managing change decision making and problem solving crisis leadership and managing and taking care of yourself Busy leaders and aspiring leaders can learn essential information about a leadership topic quickly then explore cited and recommended resources as needed to build deeper expertise While examples are focused on the unique needs and environments of health sciences libraries much of the material will be useful to leaders in all types of libraries Today's libraries must navigate challenging and rapidly changing environments and compete for talent in a tight and highly competitive labor market Effective and compassionate leadership is essential for libraries and the people who work in them to thrive in these conditions Essential Leadership Skills for Health Sciences Information Professionals is designed to help aspiring new and experienced leaders develop the skills to build and sustain healthy innovative flexible and resilient organizations and work environments that create value for their employees and the populations they serve Libraries and

Finding Your Seat at the Table Susan M. Harnett, Lauren P. Cantwell-Jurkovic, 2022-02-19 Service on Institutional Review Boards IRB and Institutional Animal Care and Use Committees IACUC is an uncommon activity for librarians Even librarians who participate in institutional research activities in a supportive capacity or conduct their own original research as scholars themselves and are familiar with the IRB IACUC research approval process they may hesitate to participate more fully with these boards There may be a perception that the work of the IRB and IACUC is too scientifically complex for librarians without an appropriate background Library administrators may not advocate for librarian inclusion on the board for fear of additional burdens on the librarian's time and university administrators might need some convincing of the librarian's suitability to perform this work. This book provides librarians with foundational knowledge of the IRB and IACUC, describes the work of these important committees and expands librarians' conceptualization and knowledge of opportunities to create services and partnerships through participation. The book provides a progressively more comprehensive understanding of the work of these committees. Parts I and II discuss IRB and IACUC respectively, their history, functions, and membership. Part III highlights expanding roles for librarians on IRB and IACUC and in institutional research activities. A special feature of this section describes the experiences of librarians in their own words who work with IRB or IACUC, what they have learned, how they have used their experiences to create partnerships and market library services, and what role they see for libraries and librarians in institutional research.

Libraries in the Information Age

Denise K. Fourie, Nancy E. Loe, 2016-05-23. The book Library Media Connection cited as something all librarians need to have on their shelves is now thoroughly revised for today's 21st-century library environment. Covering both technology and library practices, the title has been a go-to text for librarians and library school students since 2002. Since the second edition of this must-have book was published in late 2009, libraries have undergone profound changes primarily linked to advances in technology. We've seen the debut of RDA, the release of new Pew Research library and Internet use data, and the establishment of digital repositories, community MakerSpaces, and community reads programs. Of course, libraries have also been affected by the expanding use of social media. This thoroughly updated title addresses all these changes and more, bringing you up to date on the monumental shifts impacting librarianship. The book is designed to introduce LIS students to the profession, preparing them to enter an exciting and evolving world. It clarifies the changing roles and responsibilities of library professionals, new paradigms for evaluating information, and characteristics and functions of today's library personnel. Among other subjects, chapters cover preparing materials for use, circulation, reference services, ethics in the information age, Internet trends, and job search basics. References, websites, and publications at the end of every chapter point to further resources, and appendices supply information such as policies, the library bill of rights, and the Freedom to Read statement.

Data Information Literacy Jake Carlson, Lisa R. Johnston, 2015. Data information literacy is introduced as a new area of opportunity for librarians seeking to educate the next generation of scholars about best practices when working with research data in a way that is sustainable over the long term.

Dynamic Research Support in Academic Libraries Starr Hoffman, 2016-03-16. This inspiring book will enable academic librarians to develop excellent research and instructional services and create a library culture that encompasses exploration, learning, and collaboration. Higher education and academic libraries are in a period of rapid evolution. Technology, pedagogical shifts, and programmatic changes in education mean that libraries must continually evaluate and adjust their services to meet new needs. Research and learning across institutions is becoming more team-based, crossing disciplines, and dependent on increasingly sophisticated and varied data.

To provide valuable services in this shifting diverse environment libraries must think about new ways to support research on their campuses including collaborating across library and departmental boundaries This book is intended to enrich and expand your vision of research support in academic libraries by Inspiring you to think creatively about new services Sparking ideas of potential collaborations within and outside the library increasing awareness of functional areas that are potential key partners Providing specific examples of new services as well as the decision making and implementation process Encouraging you to take a broad view of research support rather than thinking of research and instruction services metadata creation and data services etc as separate initiatives Dynamic Research Support in Academic Libraries provides illustrative examples of emerging models of research support and is contributed to by library practitioners from across the world The book is divided into three sections Part I Training and Infrastructure which describes the role of staff development and library spaces in research support Part II Data Services and Data Literacy which sets out why the rise of research data services in universities is critical to supporting the current provision of student skills that will help develop them as data literate citizens Part III Research as a Conversation which discusses academic library initiatives to support the dissemination discovery and critical analysis of research This is an essential guide for librarians and information professionals involved in supporting research and scholarly communication as well as library administrators and students studying library and information science
