Exploring The Boundaries Of International Criminal Justice International And Comparative Criminal Justice:

Exploring the Boundaries of International Criminal Justice Professor Mark Findlay, Professor Ralph

Henham, 2013-02-28 This collection discusses appropriate methodologies for comparative research and applies this to the issue of trial transformation in the context of achieving justice in post conflict societies In developing arguments in relation to these problems the authors use international sentencing and the question of victims interests and expectations as a focus The conclusions reached are wide ranging and highly significant in challenging existing conceptions for appreciating and giving effect to the justice demands of victims of war and social conflict The themes developed demonstrate clearly how comparative contextual analysis facilitates our understanding of the legal and social contexts of international punishment and how this understanding can provide the basis for expanding the role of restorative international criminal justice within the context of international criminal trials

Restorative Justice in Transitional Settings Kerry

Clamp, 2016-02-12 Restorative justice is increasingly being applied to settings characterized by large scale violence and human rights abuses While many embrace this development as an important step in attempts to transform protracted conflict there are a number of conceptual challenges in transporting restorative justice from a democratic setting to one which has been affected by mass victimisation or civil war These include responding to the seriousness and scale of harms that have been caused the blurred boundaries between victims and offenders and the difficulties associated with holding someone to account and compelling reparative activities Despite reams of paper being devoted to defining restorative justice within democratic settings where the concept first emerged restorative scholars have been slow to comment on the integration of restorative justice into the transitional justice discourse Restorative Justice in Transitional Settings brings together a number of leading scholars from around the world to respond to this gap by developing and further articulating restorative justice for transitional settings These scholars push the boundaries of restorative justice to seek more effective approaches to addressing the causes and consequences of conflict and oppression in these diverse contexts Each chapter highlights a limitation with current conceptions of restorative justice in the transitional justice literature and then suggests a way in which the limitation might be overcome. This book has strong interdisciplinary value and will be of interest to criminologists, legal scholars and those engaged with international relations and peace treaties. Policing in Hong Kong Kam C. Wong, 2016-04-22. This book is one of the first to document the challenges and opportunities facing the Hong Kong police force following the reversion of political authority from the UK to China in 1997. Thematically organized and oriented towards those issues of greatest concern to the public such as police accountability, assaults on police, police deployment, surveillance powers and policing across borders, it provides a detailed discussion of these and other contemporary issues. The opening chapter sets the work within historical context while the final chapter provides a comparison of policing in Hong Kong with public security in the PRC. The book will be of value to students and researchers working in the area of comparative policing and comparative criminal justice as well as police professionals and policy makers. The Dual State Eric Wilson, 2016-03-23. This volume presents a practical demonstration of the relevance of Carl Schmitt's thought to parapolitical studies, arguing that his constitutional theory is the one best suited to investing the deep state with intellectual and doctrinal coherence. Critiquing Schmitt's work from a variety of intellectual perspectives, the chapters discuss current parapolitical reality within the domain of criminology, the parapolitical nature of both the dual state and the national security state, corporate complex. Using the USA as a prime example of the world's current dual or deep political state, the criminogenic dimensions of the parapolitical systems of post 9/11 America are discussed. Using case studies, the dual state is examined as the causal factor of inexplicable parapolitical events within both the developed and developing world, including Sweden, Canada, Italy, Turkey and Africa. International Journal of Comparative and Applied Criminal Justice, 2004. International Criminal Justice Review, 2003. Crime & Justice International, 2001. Comparative Criminal Justice Systems Erika Fairchild, 1993. COMPARATIVE CRIMINAL JUSTICE SYSTEMS is a topical approach to the subject rather than a country-by-country approach. This approach allows the author to explore historical, political, economic, social and cultural influences on various criminal justice systems around the world. The author uses six main countries as model countries to give specific examples within each chapter. Every chapter ends with a summary, questions for discussion and suggestions for further reading. Lessons from International/comparative Criminology/criminal Justice John Winterdyk, Liqun Cao, 2004. This book is an anthology of 14 contributions who discuss their careers and specialities in criminal justice and speculate on where the field is heading. Authors also offer their advice and experiences to students who might be interested in the general discipline. Bibliographie Sur Le TPIR, TPIY Et MIFRTP, 2018. The product is compiled by IRMCT Libraries to ensure that researchers around the world locate volume of published documents on the work of the ICTR and ICTY during their lifetime. The IRMCT bibliography on ICTR and ICTY includes reference materials such as books and book chapters, articles from periodicals, comments and notes on cases as well as theses. World Criminal Justice Systems Richard J.
