Agency and Integrality Michael J. White,2012-12-06 It is not very surprising that it was no less true in antiquity than it is today that adult human beings are held to be responsible for most of their actions Indeed virtually all cultures in all historical periods seem to have had some conception of human agency which in the absence of certain responsibility defeating conditions entails such responsibility Few philosophers have had the temerity to maintain that this entailment is trivial because such responsibility defeating conditions are always present Another not very surprising fact is that ancient thinkers tended to ascribe integrality to what is to on That is they typically regarded what is as a cosmos or whole with distinguishable parts that fit together in some coherent or cohesive manner rather than either as a unity with no parts or as a collection containing members ta onta or things that are standing in no natural relations to one another 1 The philosophical problem of determinism and responsibility may I think best be characterized as follows it is the problem of preserving the phenomenon of human agency which would seem to require a certain separateness of individual human beings from the rest of the cosmos when one sets about the philosophical or scientific task of explaining the integrality of what is by means of the development of a theory of causation or explanation concepts that came to be lumped together by the Greeks under the term aitia
