Finding God, Losing God Bart Nedelman, 2015-12-05 Zach found God and Jesus His half brother Bart had forgotten where he'd last left them to fend for themselves Zach explained to Bart that God was like a cosmic Vito Corleone willing to make him an offer he couldn't refuse Bart countered that Zach's God was more like an Orwellian free range chicken pecking his soul into submission Can such opposing iron clad reasoning be resolved into any sensible epistemology worthy of navigating one's way in this world or the next Their conversations are blistering and real and while we're laughing we will definitely think about the high price one pays for finding and abetting God If you're looking for love without god you've come to the right place Bart Nedelman defends the no god no need for god proposition and makes the case that there is far more love peace and civil liberty to go around when no God is around and a far more fulfilling and spiritual upside to cutting God loose to fend for itself Finding God Losing God is a moral slugfest and a religious romp Bart makes the cost benefit take of finding God or losing this archaic fiction and well of human misery well worth considering and long overdue But why stop there It's open season on a rogues gallery of miscreants and theological thugs of all stripes Tea Party whiners fundamentalist Islamist bullies evangelical goons for Christ politicians and rock star televangelists who glibly mislead their painfully naive and gullible adherents especially about whom Jesus wants them to vote for Bart calls them on the unrelenting mayhem and gratuitous harm they cause with their genitalia obsessions gay bashing misogyny and the irrational and intellectual insults that faith based politicians and religionists attempt to push across our boundaries every day Bart exposes evangelical Christian faith based politics for what it is the manipulation of the most vulnerable and ignorant among us *Foes of Faith: four sermons ... Any Body There? Craig Michael Mueller, 2017-07-21 Any body there we may wonder as we watch people engage with their smart phones while being oblivious to what is going on around them Anybody there is the question facing the church as it wrestles with declining religious affiliation Craig Mueller considers this contemporary context and offers a response based in an incarnational spirituality accentuating the body and finding expression in corporate multisensory liturgy Mueller creatively weaves together topics from our digital lives with personal and congregational stories and theological liturgical and spiritual reflections Concepts such as virtuality the analog 24 7 connectivity access design and GPS are juxtaposed with themes of embodiment mortality sabbath mystery beauty and vocation Drawing on his experience as a pastor to millennials his studies in liturgical theology and his work on the effects of technology on daily life Mueller proposes that corporate worship is an antidote to the distraction fragmentation and spiritual hunger in society today As humans continue to merge with machines participation in the Sunday liturgy reminds us of what it means to be human a deeper connection to our bodies and the earth and a clear sense of purpose and mission for our everyday lives

Chapter by Chapter Through the Bible John Stuart Holden, 1920 Herald and Presbyter, 1922 God's Almost Chosen Peoples George C. Rable, 2010-11-29 Throughout the Civil War soldiers and civilians on both sides of the conflict saw the hand of God in the terrible events of the day but the standard narratives of the period pay scant attention to religion Now in God's Almost Chosen Peoples Lincoln Prize winning historian George C Rable offers a groundbreaking account of how Americans of all political and religious persuasions used faith to interpret the course of the war Examining a wide range of published and unpublished documents including sermons official statements from various churches denominational papers and periodicals and letters diaries and newspaper articles Rable illuminates the broad role of religion during the Civil War giving attention to often neglected groups such as Mormons Catholics blacks and people from the Trans Mississippi region The book underscores religion's presence in the everyday lives of Americans north and south struggling to understand the meaning of the conflict from the tragedy of individual death to victory and defeat in battle and even the ultimate outcome of the war Rable shows that themes of providence sin and judgment pervaded both public and private writings about the conflict Perhaps most important this volume the only comprehensive religious history of the war highlights the resilience of religious faith in the face of political and military storms the likes of which Americans had never before endured Our Paper, 1906 What Would I Believe if I Didn't Believe Anything? Kent Ira Groff, 2004-01-02 What Would I Believe if I Didn't Believe Anything is a guidebook for spiritual orphans that shows how they can doubt their way home by embracing their doubts and asking the hard questions as a meaningful path toward genuine faith The author helps readers value their own questions and learn to talk about spiritual matters in fresh non religious language Rather than handing down doctrines from above Groff invites readers to look at life from below exploring experiences of daily living He helps the reader to find the grace in the grit of everyday life seeking analogies of faith in film and literature psychology and science poetry and arts music and sports Drawing primarily from the well of his Christian experience Groff also incorporates insights from the world's primal myths and major religions Fifty reflection exercises make it ideal for group use with journeyers of varied backgrounds for campuses prisons communal residences religious communities and work places The Christian Union Henry Ward Beecher, 1883 The Christian Advocate, 1900 The Sabbath school magazine, ed. by W.
