Finished Business A Marcus Corvinus Mystery Set In Ancient Rome:

Finished Business David Wishart, 2014-11-01 Ancient Roman sleuth Marcus Corvinus uncovers a treasonous plot in this witty and intriguing new mystery November AD 40 When a wealthy consul's wife asks Corvinus to investigate the death of her uncle killed by a block of falling masonry during renovations on his estate in the Vatican Hills a sceptical Corvinus is inclined to agree with the general verdict of accidental death But his investigations reveal clear evidence of foul play as well as unearthing several skeletons among the closets of this well to do but highly dysfunctional family Who could have wanted Lucius Surdinus dead His vengeful ex wife His ambitious mistress His disillusioned elder or his estranged younger son Or does the key to the mystery lie in the dead man's political past But when Corvinus's investigations draw him to the attention of the emperor a dangerously unpredictable Caligula his prospects of surviving long enough to solve the mystery look slim to say the least

Germanicus David Wishart, 2016-06-20 When Rome's blue eyed boy Germanicus adopted son and possible heir of the Emperor Tiberius dies abroad in highly suspicious circumstances the finger points squarely at the Dowager Empress Livia and Corvinus fresh and still smarting from his recent brush with the lady has no reason to believe otherwise Quite the reverse in fact Only when she summons him to the Palace for a private interview events take an unexpected and surprising turn I swear Livia said slowly by all the gods above and below by my hope of escaping torment in the next world for the murders I have committed in this and by my hope for my own eventual deification that I was neither directly nor indirectly responsible for the death of my grandson Germanicus Caesar I was staring at her She took her hand away from the altar There Close your mouth now you look ridiculous Does that satisfy you or would you like to dictate the words yourself No that about covers it My head was spinning You mind explaining why now She lowered herself painfully back into her chair It must've been built up because we were on the level again Why the oath she said Or why I brought you here in the first place Both Excellency They're the same thing anyway aren't they Naturally But if you've realised that then the answer to your question should be obvious Let's pretend it isn't Tell me anyway Oh Corvinus You disappoint me Her thin lips turned down Of course now you know that I wasn't responsible for Germanicus's death I want you to find out who was The second book in the Marcus Corvinus series

Trade Secrets David Wishart, 2016-02-01 The intriguing witty and irreverent new mystery featuring Ancient Roman sleuth Marcus Corvinus May AD 41 The emperor Claudius has acceded to the throne and the citizens of Rome look forward to an era of peace and stability Not so Marcus Corvinus however who finds himself embroiled in not one but two investigations A friend of his wife has asked him to look into the murder of her brother found stabbed to death at the Shrine of Melobosis A wily businessman and notorious womaniser no one seems to have a good word to say about Gaius Tullius not even his less than grieving widow But who would have a good enough reason to want him dead At the same time Corvinus's daughter comes across a dead body in the Pollio Gardens and urges her father to investigate At first Marcus refuses to get involved but when his enquiries lead him to Ostia Rome's busy trading port he uncovers a disturbing

Alan Scribner, 2021-09-09 The Dagger of Nemesis is the 9th in the series of highly acclaimed and best selling Judge Marcus Flavius Severus mysteries in Ancient Rome. This story takes place in the year 173 CE during the reign of Marcus Aurelius. It is 2 years after the events in A Shipwreck Conspiracy. Judge Severus is retired from the Court of the Urban Prefect and living with his family in the countryside where he can study philosophy and history and astronomy and contemplate. But Fate intervenes. The Prefect of the City of Rome seeks his help to solve a series of murders that no one has been able to solve in the month since they were committed. There were three murders in three days. The first victim was a famous charioteer of the Red faction. The second was a famous courtesan. The third was an obscure shoemaker. Each victim had their throat slit with a dagger and the number I, II, or III written on their cheek in their own blood. Severus assembles his complement of helpers for the investigation: his secretary Alexander, his police aides Vulso and Straton, his bodyguard Crantor, his court clerk Proculus, his former assessor Flaccus, and of course his wife Artemisia. This book, as the others in the series, is not only a mystery but also captures the daily life of ancient Rome and is a sojourn into the world of courts, police, and criminal law of the period. All laws, rescripts, and legal procedures are from Roman law sources.

A Dying Light in Corduba Lindsey Davis, 2002. The eighth in the series of crime novels set in Ancient Rome and featuring the classical sleuth Marcus Didius Falco. When a man is killed and Rome's Chief of Spies left for dead, Falco's investigation plunges him into the fiercely competitive world of olive oil production. Private eye novel. Historical mystery. Cozy mystery.
