Getting To Graduation The Completion Agenda In Higher Education:

Getting to Graduation Andrew P. Kelly, Mark Schneider, 2012-09 What will it take to achieve President Obama's higher education completion agenda The United States long considered to have the best higher education in the world now ranks eleventh in the proportion of 25 to 34 year olds with a college degree As other countries have made dramatic gains in degree attainment the U S has improved more slowly In response President Obama recently laid out a national completion agenda with the goal of making the U S the best educated nation in the world by the year 2020 Getting to Graduation explores the reforms that we must pursue to recover a position of international leadership in higher education as well as the obstacles to those reforms This new completion agenda puts increased pressure on institutions to promote student success and improve institutional productivity in a time of declining public revenue In this volume scholars of higher education and public policymakers describe promising directions for reform They argue that it is essential to redefine postsecondary education and to consider a broader range of learning opportunities beyond the research university and traditional bachelor degree programs to include community colleges occupational certificate programs and apprenticeships The authors also emphasize the need to rethink policies governing financial aid remediation and institutional funding to promote degree completion

John Dewey and the Future of Community College Education Clifford P. Harbour, 2015-01-15 Honorable Mention 2016 PROSE Award Education Theory Today community colleges enroll 40% of all undergraduates in the United States In the years ahead these institutions are expected to serve an even larger share of this student population However faced with increasing government pressure to significantly improve student completion rates many community colleges will be forced to reconsider their traditional commitment to expand educational opportunity Community colleges therefore are at a crossroads Should they focus on improving student completion rates and divert resources from student recruitment programs Should they improve completion rates by closing developmental studies programs and limiting enrollment to college ready students Or can community colleges simultaneously expand educational opportunity and improve student completion In John Dewey and the Future of Community College Education Cliff Harbour argues that before these questions can be answered community colleges must articulate the values and priorities that will guide them in the future Harbour proposes that leaders across the institution come together and adopt a new democracy based normative vision grounded in the writings of John Dewey which would call upon colleges to do much more than improve completion rates and expand educational opportunity It would look beyond the national economic measures that dominate higher education policy debates today and would prioritize individual student growth and the development of democratic communities Harbour argues that this in turn would help community colleges contribute to the vital work of reconstructing American democracy John Dewey and the Future of Community College Education is essential reading for all community college advocates interested in taking a more active role in developing the community college of the future
